

Freeborn-Mower Cooperative Services Lineworker Scholarship Application

Freeborn-Mower Cooperative Services (FMCS) is proud to offer two $1,000 scholarships to assist individuals pursuing a post secondary education in an electric utility lineworker program.

An electrical lineworker performs many different tasks, including climbing poles, digging trenches to string underground electric cable and operating aerial lift devices to work on overhead lines.

The electric utility lineworker is the “backbone” of the utility system. The profession represents the physical labor required to operate and maintain the electric grid.

In addition to being physically demanding, the lineworker’s job can be dangerous. They also respond during the worst weather or disasters, which often cause extensive damage to the electrical lines. However, according to OSHA data, the injury rate within this occupation is on par with other professions. This is a tribute to the high degree of professionalism and concern for safety and safety equipment that are integral to the profession.

The lineworker’s job has a strong public service aspect, and may be likened to that of a “first responder.” Indeed, in the event of natural disasters such as hurricanes or ice storms, lineworkers are critical in restoring the electric system - and hence community - to normalcy (Source: U.S. Department of Energy, “Workforce Trends in the Electric Utility Industry,” 2006., pg. 14).
